Covid no longer a reason to step back from an exam

- For the past semesters students could list „conditions of the Covid pandemic“ as a reason to step back from a exam without any further explanation or proof of illness → This is not possible anymore
- Now back to old regulation:
 - Step back is possible three days before the exam via Portal 2 if it is the first time the exam is written (without any reason)
 - Last three days before the exam one has to contact the student services and needs a valid reason to step back like a proof of illness

Spread the word!

Best professor, really good teaching style

Have to take weird courses like DA instead

Core course Friday morning is not clever

Probably the most unfair exam I've ever written...

waste of time, haven't learned much useful

Very well structured, good organization by the chair, Prof is very motivated to teach the students

Great course, definitely recommendable

Very interesting and good case study

Grandioser Kurs, super Prof

The teaching quality of the exercise classes is ridiculous. It's better to stay at home & use the solution uploaded (4x)

Worst course I've ever had in my life

The lecture was kind of a shame for the university of Mannheim
